- 4. On Saturday, July 25, 2020, around 5 p.m., I was near the front of the protest lines at Broadway and Pine. Along with others, I was chanting. Without any warning and without any order to disperse, police started using some kind of chemical gas and people started running. I stayed where I was because I had goggles on and I wasn't as impacted. Someone handed me a leaf blower and I used it to try to blow the gas away from protesters.
- 5. Then I got hit twice, extremely hard, by projectiles, one in each thigh. I couldn't tell what they were but they left huge tennis ball sized lacerations. I ran away to avoid getting hit again and stopped on the hill in the park by Seattle Central College. While checking my wounds, I got hit again in the back. This time, it was from further away so the impact wasn't as bad. I ran again to get further away.
- 6. My leg wounds hurt a lot and I had to sit down and get a street medic to check them out and dress them.
- 7. Later, my thighs swelled a tremendous amount and turned black and blue. They swelled up even more the next day and are still very swollen today.
- 8. I didn't seek additional care, but I consulted with my brother-in-law who is a medical doctor. After reviewing the photos, he told me how to care for the wounds, including what to look for that might indicate that I needed to go to urgent care or the emergency room.
- 9. My injuries, sustained over a week ago, continue to cause me pain. I consider myself lucky, though. I've read about protesters in other cities who have been blinded or had their testicles ruptured by projectiles. A slight shift in aim and the injuries I sustained on my upper thighs could easily have hit me in a particularly sensitive area.
- 10. True and correct photos taken on July 25, 2020, of my injuries are attached hereto as Exhibits A E.
- 11. True and correct photos taken on July 26, 2020, of my injuries are attached hereto as Exhibits F H.
